

BOYS & GIRLS CLUBS OF AMERICA

State of Youth in America

Every young person deserves to thrive – regardless of their circumstances or ZIP code. But for too many kids and teens, a great future and their ability to reach their full potential are threatened by widening income and access inequities.

BARRIERS TO OPPORTUNITIES

households face food insecurity.

INEQUITY IN ACADEMIC ACHIEVEMENT

The percentage of 4th graders who read proficiently remains low. Dramatic racial gaps persist.

THE IMPACT OF COVID-19

The COVID-19 pandemic exacerbates existing gaps in opportunity, with potentially long-term impacts on kids and teens, especially those from communities grappling with systemic inequity.

From nutrition and learning loss, to safety and emotional well-being, the pandemic's social and economic stressors and lack of normally available safety nets have disrupted young people's development and well-being.

Advocate for America's youth at the local, state and federal levels

"I never really felt like I was in control of my life," says Anaa. A refugee from Ethiopia, he and his family fled to America when he was a child. Life in America brought new challenges, from learning English to adjusting to a new culture. Anaa fell in with the wrong crowd and frequently got into trouble.

One day, a police officer gave him a guest pass to the local Boys & Girls Club. There, he found people and a place that encouraged him to achieve. "I had people who actually cared about me. I had a place where I could make mistakes and learn from them," he says.

Through Club programs like CareerLaunch and Money Matters, Anaa explored the possibilities for his future and built valuable life skills. He even became his Club's

For every $1 that Clubs pay in membership dues to BGCA, they receive $68 in funding and services. Giving to BGCA directly translates to more resources for Clubs so they can focus on what matters: servicing the kids and teens who need us most.

A PLACE TO BECOME: ANAA'S STORY

community outreach intern. But it was his Club mentor, Mr. Williams, who made the biggest difference. In Mr. Williams, Anaa saw someone who looked like him and was successful and college educated. He challenged Anaa to think about what he wanted to do. Together, they made a list of Anaa's goals, and Mr. Williams held Anaa accountable to each one. By high school graduation, Anaa had crossed everything off the list.

In 2019, Anaa was recognized as the Midwest Youth of the Year. Today, he is a student at Pomona College with plans to become an entrepreneur. He has already started his own company that sells reusable water bottles, with a portion of the proceeds supporting organizations working to increase access to clean water across Africa.

Every $1 invested in Boys & Girls Clubs returns $9.60 in economic benefits.
